Barnum, he was assaulted by Barnum; but being the better man of the two he climched and threw him to the ground, when a young man by the name of Frank Lisk and one Wm. BREEDSVILLE, Jan. 30, 1871. EDITOR TRUE NORTHERNER :- As yours is a county paper, and circulates generally in the county, I suppose communications from the interior will be acceptable; and we also desire to make ourselves known now that we have E. The first passenger train passed over the Chicago and Michigan Lake Shore Railroad to-day, as far as the junction of the above road with the Kalamazco and South Haven Railroad, four miles north of this place.

We see decided preparations already for an mcrease of business and growth of the town. A stave factory is being built and is nearly ready to operate; several stores are projected, beside the erection of a grain elevator at the day evening last, a dwelling house on the corner depot, by the citizens, or a company of stock holders. The water power will undoubtedly be improved the coming season to its utmost was consumed. A portion of the furniture capacity. People are already coming in from saved. Loss about $1,000.
